Location: Lakeside High on Briarcliff

On this unusually hot day in March, we gathered in the small student parking lot behind Lakeside High. Bewildered students stopped their basketball game to watch us as we peeled off layer after layer of protective clothing in attempt to cool off. Colonel Clit stood off to the side, smiling, covered in flour and wet from the chest down. The instructions included floating apparatus, I believe. Stiff Upper Clit, despite her tie of matrimony to the hare, proclaimed she had been given no prior information about the trail that lay ahead.

After Yassir did his pink chalk, the pack took off to the Northwest corner of the school. We headed straight into a narrow trail and into a creek. Within seconds the trail turned, leading us back over the creek and back to the start! The hares stood there laughing, as we floundered onto the blacktop. During this time, Stiff Upper Clit flew by across a stretch of grass, led by her owner Basil.

Meanwhile, sensing a circle jerk, Elvis and his gang of shiggy lovers had gone to the left of the pack. They soon found trail and whistled for the rest of the pack to follow. We ran a short stretch of sidewalk, down Briarcliff. Only Kaptain Krash dared to step into the street to pass slower hashers and avoid obstacles. What a sight! Passing cars swerved feverishly, as the man and his stroller bopped on and off the sidewalk.

Enter turn off onto a smaller residential road, the bold hounds spread out across the road.

Enter shiggy. And briars. And more briars. Yassir and Colonel found briars for everyone, growing along the creek, up the hills and behind apartment complexes. Did I mention the creek? Most animals will only cross water once and for a meaningful purpose. Our purpose, quest for beer was honorable, however my day was a wet one, as it was for most hounds. We emerged from the creek briefly, to run up a hill and into Yassir's apartment complex. Rumors of a water stop surfaced when Dain Bramage was seen returning from the complex to the woods. The pack thinned out at this point, the water stop stood atop a mean hill. Some chose hydration, some chose to avoid the hill and therefore plummeted back down into the creek. More criss-crossing, lovely shiggy and bewildered onlookers followed. Some found the second water stop, and paid for it by the count back that it lay on.

Of our little pack, Barf Bag took the lead, making up his own trail which was surprisingly to his and our benefit. When the woods thinned we saw BWANA skirting around the trail on higher ground. We soon joined him, moving uphill along an interstate access road and across a movie theatre parking lot. There we discovered where the theatre discards their patrons trash – yuk! Who knew this theatre stood in front of thick shiggy, knee high swamp and muckity muck-muck. Luckily (or unluckily according to BWANA), our stay in the swamp was short and we soon came out to cross road and arrive at the ON IN.
