The Trail:

Let me begin by saying one should NEVER, Never wait a month to write the hash trash.....everything becomes very vague after about a week (well, after about 4 beers and the possible down-down). I must apologize to the hares, because, yes, I do remember it was quite a pleasant hash!

We began in the parking lot of Publix on Buford Highway. It was a balmy afternoon- as is any early June day in Atlanta. As the hounds began to gather, Shiggy noticed that Keyless Entry had a new ride for her Keyless self- he also noticed that this car had no tag, but already had an  on the back. That's dedication! I waited until my car hit the 10,000 mile mark before I decided to mark myself with the "DUI Alert" insignia.

We headed out through the parking lot of NorthWoods Plaza and through some apartments. With confused looks trailing us through the complex, we came to the first of several checks. The True trail lead across a creek that smelled like a high school bathroom floor. Many folks tried to discover ways to box this creek, but no luck. It did prove lucky for Squid Dick, however, as he was able to catch up to the pack after a late start. He took a few quick photos and went on his way.

This is where my memory gets a little weak. I was with Shiggy in a creek, Hangs to the Right in the kudzu, stopped at a water stop by the road (where we received confused looks from passersby...I guess it did appear that we randomly picked up a jug and started passing it around). We ran through an abandoned school playground (thanks Jim Cherry- former Superintendent of DeKalb County Schools- for building all those now-abandoned schools through which we can now hash!). I laughed at the entrance to the Knob Hill subdivision (huh! Huh! That sign says "Knob"). We encountered some precocious little kids on trail who directed us to the next glob of flour (best kid question on trail: "What are you going to do with all that flour when you are done?")...and soon we were at the end!

I must say, if all hashes ended like this, I would go as often as Donny-Thu-Retahd! Krusty's home was beautiful! He provided us with a shower, soap and shampoo (outdoors, of course!), grillable meats to go with our beer and orange food, and lovely toilet facilities for other needs! I nominate this as the best ending ever...

Down-downs of note (If I can remember correctly and can read Davey's handwriting-)

- Yoron Weed- FRB
- Krispy Kreme- some shirt he was wearing...tie-dyed Americana monstrosity- but I forgot what it said
- Shake and Bake- DFL
- Ass Cracker- Demonstration Down-Down/ Ninja hash (?)
- Dave Zupan- Virgin
- Little Willy- No chair: He thought ending was at Afterbirth's
- Keyless Entry- Too Long and On-on Sticker
- Yeaster Bunny- for asking how long a 5K run would be (Give him a break! I'm sure he's too young to remember the push to metric in the 70s/ 80s!)
- Hangs to the Right- Some Lame-Ass badminton shirt that he will never wear again...can't remember what it said

- Spanish Fly- visitante y DFL. ;Bienvenidos, nuestra amiga puertorriqueña!
- Little Easy- FRB
- Cynthia f*cker- Too Long
- Ouch!- DFL
- Tired Dick- Too Long
- Armadillo- Too Long
- Patton Cutter- Too Long

...And a naming!

Krusty's lovely lady, Vickie Van Der Hoek, my homegirl from Pico Rivera, California (;OralÉ!), Is now Dutch Oven Lovin'!
